

How can users from outside Solvay access my AODocs library?

AODocs is a Google add-on application and requires initial authentication by Google. Outside of Solvay users may gain access to AODocs files by obtaining a Google account using their preferred email address whether it be a private Google account or other email address . Once this account is setup, the AODocs Administrator can use the new Google account to control access to AODocs libraries as noted in Step 4 below.

For more information and directions to setup this account, click here