

China rules dumping of TBHQ imports from India

DATE : 2014-08-22

China's Ministry of Commerce (MOC) announced on Thursday final rulings against Tertiary Butylhydroquinone (TBHQ) imports from India, saying that TBHQ from India has been dumped on the Chinese market and such imports have caused substantial damage to the local industry.

The MOC launched an anti-dumping probe into imported Indian TBHQ on August 22 last year.

TBHQ is a kind of antioxidant, which can be used in instant noodles, bacon, dried food cans and fried food.
