DATE : 2014-05-09

Taiwan's China Petrochemical Development Corp (CPDC) is ramping up the operating rate of a 120,000 tonne/year acrylonitrile (ACN) line at Kaohsiung in Taiwan following a turnaround, a company source said on Friday.

The company brought forward the line's turnaround to 1-7 May from mid-May, the source said.

"We we are still ramping up the [line's] operating rate," the source added.

The company's another 120,000 tonne/year ACN at the same site, which was shut for a turnaround in April, is now running at full capacity, according to the source.
