

Butadiene unit likely to be shut by Ineos for maintenance turnaround

DATE : 2014-03-10

INEOS has shut down the smaller of its two butadiene (BD) extraction lines at its site in Dormagen in Germany for planned maintenance, market sources said on Tuesday.

Sources said the unit was taken offline on 17 March with restart anticipated sometime in mid-April. This has not been confirmed by the company, which does not usually comment on production.

INEOS has the capacity to produce 245,000 tonnes in total of BD at Dormagen, according to ICIS data.
